Thank you, Professor Katz, for sharing your important work! I have a question about access (as a student writing a dissertation critical of a powerful institution): how were you able to gain access to the camps and the archives/images/information central to your project? What obstacles did you face in your research and, later, the publication of your work? I'd love to hear any words of wisdom you might have regarding gaining access to sites/information that are actively shrouded.
